

Seth Mayer

Seth Mayer is currently an Instructor in the Department of Philosophy at Auburn University in Alabama. He received his BA in philosophy from the University of Chicago and his PhD in philosophy from Northwestern University. His dissertation, Democratic Ethos: A Theory of Informal Politics, investigates the demands democracy places on extra-institutional social life. He is engaged in ongoing research on democratic theory, criminal law and philosophy, global political philosophy, critical theory, and ethics. Seth has published co-authored work on philosophical issues related to the criminal justice reform movement and has a solo-authored forthcoming chapter on the relevance of the concept of solidarity to current debates in the philosophy of human rights.