

Giacomo Tagiuri

Giacomo Tagiuri is a Ph.D. Candidate in International Law and Economics at Bocconi University, in Milan, under the supervision of Prof. Yane Svetiev. His dissertation studies the impact of EU Law in specific cases of market regulation that have a cultural (or way of life) dimension. By doing so he seeks to challenge an influential stream of scholarship that sees EU integration as purely homogenizing and eroding the diversity of national cultures and identities. Giacomo is broadly interested in European integration, legal theory, comparative public law and the relationship between law, culture and society. He previously has researched and published in the areas of administrative law, cultural heritage law as well as international relations and public policy.

Giacomo holds a Law degree from the University of Bologna and a Master of Arts in European Studies and International Economics from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies in Washington DC. He is a research fellow at the Center for Constitutional Studies and Democratic Development (CCSDD) in Bologna and collaborates with the ASK (Arts, Science and Knowledge) Research Center at Bocconi for a series of projects aimed at empowering the digitization of European cultural heritage. Before starting his doctoral studies, Giacomo has worked for Prof. David Calleo of Johns Hopkins SAIS researching in the areas of European Integration and transatlantic relations.
