

Michael Da Silva

Michael Da Silva is a doctoral student in the University of Toronto Faculty of Law's Doctor of Juridical Science program. His doctoral research is funded by a Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR) Vanier Canada Graduate Scholarship. He is a former Graduate Associate of the Centre for Ethics and CIHR Training Fellow in Health Law, Policy, and Ethics. Michael also completed his Juris Doctor at the University of Toronto and was Executive Editor of the University of Toronto Faculty of Law Review. He subsequently worked as a foreign law clerk at the Supreme Court of Israel, completed a Master of Arts in (Legal) Philosophy at Rutgers University, and served as a research assistant in the Codification Division of the United Nations Office of Legal Affairs. He is a member of the New York State Bar.

Michael has numerous publications in law and philosophy, including work in the Canadian Journal of Law and Jurisprudence, Criminal Justice Ethics, Ethics, Ratio Juris, Law, Ethics, and Philosophy (LEAP), Dalhousie Law Journal, and the McGill Journal of Law and Health. He also has extensive experience in bioethics, including terms as a research assistant in the Bioethics Department of the Hospital for Sick Children. His time at the hospital led to collaborative opportunities that resulted in multiple publications, including work in Narrative Inquiry in Bioethics and Perspectives in Biology and Medicine.
