

CHEN, JIANLIN

Jianlin grew up in Singapore and Taiwan. He obtained his LLB from National University of Singapore and LLM from University of Chicago. He is currently completing his JSD at the University of Chicago. He is qualified to practice in Singapore and New York.

Bilingual in English and Chinese, Jianlin published widely in law journals from U.S., U.K., Hong Kong, China and Singapore, including Columbia Journal of Asian Law, Law & Social Inquiry, Oxford Journal of Law and Religion, Hong Kong Law Journal, 公司法评论, 北大法律评论, 法律和社会科学, among others. His publications' seemingly diverse research areas of corporate law, securities regulations, insurance law, government procurement, natural resources management, historical conservation law, eminent domain, tax law, culture wars, law & religion is united by his research agenda of drawing on a combination of comparative perspectives and economic analysis (including public choice) to critically examine the unarticulated jurisprudential assumptions inherent in many areas of legal discourse.