Professor Pastalan was the college representative to the University Senate and served on the Research Policies Committee for SACUA. A recent research project was “Needs and Market Demand Assessments,” funded through the Masonic Home of Michigan. His past research includes such projects as “Environmental Attributes of Special Care Units for Residents with Alzheimer’s Disease and Related Dementia,” sponsored by the Retirement Research Foundation; “An Assessment of Environmental Interventions Developed for Frail or Disabled Persons,” and “Life Space Over the Life Span,” funded by the National Endowment for the Arts. A fellow of the Gerontological Society of America, Professor Pastalan is a widely-known expert on retirement community planning and development and has extensive experience in structuring and implementing planned communities.

The Regents now salute this faculty member by naming Leon A. Pastalan professor emeritus of architecture.

Beverley J. Pooley, professor of law, retired from active faculty status on May 31, 1998, after a splendid career as a teacher and administrator.

Born in England in 1934, Professor Pooley received his B.A. (1956) and L.L.B. (1957) degrees with first-class honors from King’s College, University of Cambridge, and L.L.M. (1958), S.J.D. (1960), and M.A.L.S. (1964) degrees from the University of Michigan. From 1960-62, he taught at the law school of the University of Ghana. Professor Pooley joined the University of Michigan Law School faculty in 1962 as an instructor. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1963, associate professor in 1966, and professor in 1970.

In 1965, Professor Pooley was appointed director of the Law Library, a position he held for twenty years. He served as associate dean of the Law Library for another ten years, from 1985-95. Professor Pooley guided the Law Library through a dramatic expansion, culminating in 1981 in the opening of the new addition that is now known as the Allan F. and Alene Smith Law Library. He has written in the areas of land use, contracts, and African law. For decades, Professor Pooley has been one of the most popular teachers in the Law School, developing courses in African law, sports law, and entertainment law, in addition to introducing large numbers of students to the basics of contracts.

The Regents now salute this accomplished scholar and educator for his long and dedicated service by naming Beverley J. Pooley professor emeritus of law.

Theodore J. St. Antoine, the James E. and Sarah A. Degan Professor of Law and professor of law, retired from active faculty status on May 31, 1998, after an extraordinary career of teaching, administration, and research.

Professor St. Antoine received his A.B. degree, summa cum laude, from Fordham University in 1951 and his J.D. degree from the University of Michigan Law School in 1954. While a student, he served as editor-in-chief of the Michigan Law Review. Following graduation from law school, he served in the judge advocate general’s office of the U.S. Army, was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of London, and practiced law in Washington, D.C. Professor St. Antoine began his career at the University of Michigan Law School in 1965 as an associate professor. He was promoted to professor in 1969 and served as dean of the Law School from 1971-78. He was named the James E. and Sarah A. Degan Professor of Law in 1981.
