Jerold H. Israel, professor of law and the Alene and Allan F. Smith Professor of Law, retired from active faculty status on August 31, 1996, after a distinguished career of teaching and research.

Born in 1934, Professor Israel received his B.B.A. degree from Western Reserve University in 1956 and his LL.B. degree from Yale Law School in 1959. From 1959-61, he served as law clerk to Justice Potter Stewart at the United States Supreme Court. Professor Israel began his career at the Law School in 1961 as an assistant professor; he was promoted to associate professor in 1964, to professor in 1967, and to the newly created Alene and Allan F. Smith chair in 1982. Professor Israel has also visited and taught at the University of Florida, Stanford University, and the University of Kansas. From 1973-92, in addition to his academic duties, Professor Israel was executive secretary to the Michigan Law Revision Commission, an agency of the Michigan legislature which proposed and secured enactment of revisions of 46 statutes during his tenure.

Professor Israel's work as scholar and teacher has focused on criminal law and procedure, fields in which he is acknowledged as one of the greatest authorities in the United States. His book Modern Criminal Procedure, now in its 8th edition, is the most widely used text in United States' law schools. His treatises on criminal procedure and criminal law are cited repeatedly by scholars and courts, and are part of the essential library of criminal lawyers and scholars in every part of the country. His teaching has commanded the respect and admiration of thousands of Michigan law students who practice throughout the United States and the world, and who continue to rely upon his counsel and judgment.

The Regents now salute this accomplished scholar and educator for his long service to the University of Michigan by naming Jerold H. Israel professor emeritus of law and the Alene and Allan F. Smith Professor Emeritus of Law.

Kenneth D. McClatchey, M.D., D.D.S., professor of pathology, Medical School, and professor of dentistry, School of Dentistry, retired from active faculty status on June 30, 1996.

Born in Detroit, Dr. McClatchey was educated at the University of Michigan, where he received his B.S. (1964), D.D.S. (1968), M.S. (1971), and M.D. (1975) degrees. Dr. McClatchey was assistant professor in residence in the Department of Oral Pathology in the Schools of Dentistry and Medicine at the University of California at San Francisco from 1971-72 prior to returning to the University of Michigan to attend medical school. From 1973-78, Dr. McClatchey held an appointment in the School of Dentistry as lecturer in the Department of Oral Pathology. In 1975, he entered the residency training program in the Department of Pathology. He completed his training and was certified by the American Board of Pathology in anatomic and clinical pathology in 1978. He was also certified in oral pathology by the American Board of Oral Pathology in 1973.

Dr. McClatchey joined the faculty as assistant professor in the Department of Pathology in 1978. He was promoted to associate professor of pathology in 1982, associate professor of dentistry, School of Dentistry, in 1985, professor of pathology in 1988, and professor of dentistry in 1994. He has also held joint appointments in the School of Dentistry and the