VIII. Essays

The University of Michigan Law School has long understood that enrolling students with a broad range of perspectives and experiences generates a vibrant culture of comprehensive debate and discussion, and we view our student body as one of our richest resources. The wide-ranging and challenging conversations of our diverse student body, inside and outside the classroom, enrich the quality of our community's intellectual life and enhance the quality of the legal education here.

Essay submissions are an extremely helpful tool for evaluating your potential contributions to our community. As you prepare to write your personal statement and any optional essays, please keep the following in mind. First, we do not have a fixed checklist of particular attributes we seek in our students, and you will have the best insights into what is most important for us to know about you. Second, there is no set convention for communicating the information you choose to share. A successful essay might involve writing directly about expansive themes such as your goals or philosophy or background or identity, or very differently, might be a vignette that reveals something significant about you. In other words, think broadly about what you might wish to convey and how you might best convey it.

While the form and content of your essays are up to you, for ease of reading, please use double-spacing and at least an 11-point font.

A. Personal Statement (required)

There is no formula for a successful personal statement, and different individuals will find different topics to be well-suited to them. Applicants have, for example, elaborated on their significant life experiences; meaningful intellectual interests and extracurricular activities; factors inspiring them to obtain a legal education or to pursue particular career goals; significant obstacles met and overcome; special talents or skills; issues of sexual or gender identity; particular political, philosophical, or religious beliefs; socioeconomic challenges; atypical backgrounds, educational paths, employment histories, or prior careers; or experiences and perspectives relating to disadvantage, disability, or discrimination. Any of these subjects, and many more, could be an appropriate basis for communicating important information about yourself that will aid us in reaching a thoughtful decision. The length of your personal statement is up to you.

B. Supplemental Essays (optional)

Supplemental essays allow you an opportunity to provide us with relevant information that you were not able to include elsewhere in your application materials. If you wish, write one or two essays (but no more) on the following topics. Each essay should be about one page.

Essay One

Say more about your interest in the University of Michigan Law School. What do you believe Michigan has to offer to you and you to Michigan?

Essay Two

Describe your current hopes for your career after completing law school. How will your education, experience, and development so far support those plans?

Essay Three

If you do not think that your academic record or standardized test scores accurately reflect your ability to succeed in law school, please tell us why.

Essay Four

Describe a failure or setback in your life. How did you overcome it? What, if anything, would you do differently if confronted with this situation again?

Essay Five

Describe an experience that speaks to the problems and possibilities of diversity in an educational or work setting.

Essay Six

What do you think are the skills and values of a good lawyer? Which do you already possess? Which do you hope to develop?

Essay Seven

How might your perspectives and experiences enrich the quality and breadth of the intellectual life of our community or enhance the legal profession?

Essay Eight

Describe your educational experiences so far. What kinds of learning environments, teaching methods, student cultures, and/or evaluation processes have you found lead you to thrive, or contrariwise, thwart your success?

IX. Residency Status

Residency status for tuition and admissions purposes is determined by criteria set forth in the University's Residency Classification Guidelines, which can be found, along with Applications for Resident Classification, at www.umich.edu/~regoff/resreg.html. (Please note each state has character, fitness, and other qualifications for admission to the bar; we encourage you to determine what those requirements are in the state(s) in which you intend to practice.) If, following your completion of this application, matters arise that would require you to answer yes to either question, supplement your application with complete details. Note that an affirmative answer to either question does not necessarily preclude or even prejudice admission. Your answer will be reviewed on an individual basis in relation to all aspects of your experience, academic achievement, and potential. You must submit a supplementary statement with any affirmative responses; provide complete details, including dates and resolution.

University of Michigan Law School Letter of Recommendation Information and Waiver Form

(You may photocopy this form, or use the LSDAS waiver form.)

Name of applicant: _____ LSAC Account # or U.S. Social Security #: _____

Letters of recommendation should be written on the recommender's letterhead and, if sent directly to the University of Michigan Law School, should have a copy of this completed form attached. Recommendations sent in a packet from a placement office or through the LSDAS recommender service need not have this form attached.

Federal legislation gives students attending the Law School the right to inspect and review the letter(s) of recommendation contained in their educational records. However, the student or applicant may waive that right of access. The letter(s) will then remain confidential between the Law School and the writer(s). You are not required to waive your right of access as a condition for admission to the Law School or for the receipt of financial aid or other benefits. All letters of recommendation, whether written confidentially or not, are carefully considered in the admission decision. You alone must decide whether to waive your right.

Letters of recommendation are most helpful when they contain candid and objective assessments of an applicant. The Law School believes that the writer of a recommendation should know prior to writing it whether it will be held in confidence. We request, therefore, that you complete the declaration below and provide the completed form to each of your recommenders. Your recommenders, in turn, should complete the acknowledgment section at the bottom of the page and submit the form, along with their recommendation, directly to the Law School. If this form is not submitted with a letter of recommendation, or if the waiver on a submitted form is not completed, we will assume that you preserve your right of access to that letter.

Applicant's Waiver Declaration:

I have read the statement above and understand that I am not required to waive the right of access provided by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 as a condition for admission to the Law School or for the receipt of financial aid or other services and benefits.
