

JD / MA

LAW & JAPANESE STUDIES

THE LAW SCHOOL AND THE CENTER FOR JAPANESE STUDIES within the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies offer a dual degree program that will lead to both the Juris Doctor (JD) and Master of Arts (MA) degrees. Through this program, all requirements for both degrees can be completed in three-and-a-half to four years of concurrent enrollment.

With this program, the University of Michigan Law School has become one of the nation's leading centers for the study of Japanese Law. The Law and Japanese Studies dual degree recognizes the growing need for specialists who combine training in law with substantive knowledge of the language, culture, and history of Japan. Students completing this dual degree will be better prepared to operate in an international environment.

Students admitted to the dual degree program in Law and Japanese Studies are required to earn credit in each school. Beyond the basic requirements, students generally are not restricted in their selection of courses in the Law School.

Students are required to take the complete sequence of first-year courses in one school during the first year of the dual program, and complete the sequence of first-year courses in the other school during the second year of the program. Each school will apply its own deferred admission standards to students who elect to take the first year in the other school.

BASIC REQUIREMENTS FOR THE JD

Students entering the Law School must complete the required first-year law curriculum. Fall starters must take one elective course of three or four credit hours during their second semester. All students must complete the following before graduation: at least one international or comparative law course of two or more credit hours, at least one upper-level course with a rigorous writing component, one statutory or regulatory course of three or more credit hours, one course in professional responsibility of two or more credit hours, and two credit hours of experiential learning. Separate courses must be taken to fulfill the upper-level course with a rigorous writing component, the professional responsibility course, and the experiential learning course.

The JD requires a minimum total of 83 credits, earned between Law School courses and courses at the Center for Japanese Studies through the Rackham School of Graduate Studies. Students must earn at least 70 credits toward the JD through courses taken in the Law School. Twelve (12) credit hours may be earned through courses taken in the Center for Japanese Studies. Instructions for requesting Law School credit for non-law courses are posted on the CTools site for dual degree students.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE MA

Students must complete a minimum of 24 credit hours of approved courses in the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies, in addition to any credit hours needed to satisfy the language proficiency requirement.

Up to six (6) credit hours may be earned through courses taken in the Law School with prior approval of the CJS Director of Graduate Studies.

GENERAL DUAL DEGREE ITEMS OF NOTE

Any JD who enrolls concurrently in another degree program will be awarded the JD degree after completing all of the requirements for the dual, joint, or combined degrees. (As a practical matter, this means that the student will receive the JD degree either after or at the same time as he or she receives the degree(s) in the other program(s).) This policy will not affect the student's class year for purposes of the Law School's commencement ceremony or alumni events, and it will not apply if a student discontinues the other degree program(s). A law student who believes that he or she will experience some hardship as a result of this policy may petition the Associate Dean for Academic Programming for an exception.

JD courses traditionally have a later grading deadline than other degree programs. In some occasions, this later JD grading deadline may affect a student in his or her final term if another degree program desires all of the student's grades prior to the JD grading deadline.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS

Applicants must gain separate and independent admission to both the Law School and the Center for Japanese Studies, affiliated with the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies, and should contact the admissions office of each school for application and admission information. The applicant's LSAT score may be used in place of the GRE.*

Students must satisfy the requirements of each school for each degree and should consult with advisers in each school for the precise graduation requirements for each degree. Students should not expect any Law courses beyond first-year courses or any Japanese Studies courses other than language to be offered in the spring/summer term. Students will not receive credit toward the JD for coursework taken prior to matriculation at the Law School. Students should consult with and obtain approval of the CJS Director of Graduate Studies concerning credit toward the MA for Law course work.

Tuition will be assessed at either the Law School or the Graduate School rate, whichever is higher, when courses toward both degrees are taken in one term.

At the beginning of their final year of study in the combined program, students should consult with both their CJS Director of Graduate Studies and the Law School Registrar regarding forms that need to be completed prior to graduation. Also at this time, students should submit a Dual/Joint Degree Election Form (www.rackham.umich.edu/current-students/policies/academic-records/dual-joint-degree-programs) for approval from both the Law School and the Center for Japanese Studies. Students should review the completed sample forms on the CTools page prior to filling out the form. Students may also consult with the Office of Student Affairs if there are any questions regarding completion of this form.

The dual degree program is not open to those who have already earned either the JD or the MA in Japanese Studies. Students who are registered in the first or second year at the Law School may apply for admission to the dual degree program.
