

Nika Bacic Selanec

Nika Bacic Selanec is a PhD candidate at the University of Zagreb, Faculty of Law, under the supervision of Prof. Iris Goldner Lang. Her dissertation explores the process of constitutionalizing the European Union in the context of free movement of persons and migration. Her research analyzes the changing contours of EU federalism and the balance of powers between the European Union and its Member States, in an attempt of going beyond the initial market-based supranationalism towards a social integration of the European Union. Nika has also researched and published in the areas of EU citizenship law, anti-discrimination law and refugee law.

Nika graduated law from the University of Zagreb in 2012. During her studies, she was part of the University of Zagreb student team that won the 2011 Central and Eastern European Moot Court Competition. In 2014, as a Hugo Grotius Fellow, she obtained her LLM degree from the University of Michigan Law School, where she also received a Certificate of Merit for outstanding performance in European Union Colloquium and the Kouba Prize for Best Paper on European Integration. Today, Nika holds a position of a Research and Teaching Assistant at the Department of European Public Law, University of Zagreb, Faculty of Law. She is also a member and a legal secretary of the Croatian European Union Studies Association. From May until October 2016, Nika will be working at the Court of Justice of the EU as a stagiaire in the cabinet of Judge Siniša Rodin and the cabinet of Advocate General Eleanor Sharpston.
