

Keren is a student in the direct Ph.D. program of Law at Zvi Meitar Center for Advanced Legal Studies. Her dissertation titled "Incorporation of Decision Support Systems in Judicial Decision-Making" is being conducted under the supervision of Prof. Eyal Benvenisti and Prof. Uri Schild. The thesis discusses the feasibility of integration of computerized decision support systems in the judiciary, the effects it will have on adjudication and on the legal system, and suggest guidelines for the design, development and incorporations of such systems.

Keren obtained her LL.B (2005, magna cum laude) and B.Sc. in Computer Sciences (2005, magna cum laude), both from Tel-Aviv University. Upon her graduation, Keren served as an intern in the Consulting and Legislation Department in the Ministry of Justice. After joining the Israeli bar in June 2006, Keren worked in the Public Committee against Torture in Israel, and as a senior clerk in the Israeli Supreme Court for honorable Justice Joseph Elon. In the recent years, Keren has served as a teaching assistant in various courses and as the coordinator of the LL.M. course "Theoretical Approaches to Law." In addition, Keren is the coordinator of the Israeli team of reporters for "Oxford Reports on International Law in Domestic Courts". Keren was a doctorate fellow in the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics in Tel-Aviv University for the academic year 2012-2013 and in 2014 received the Dan David scholarship for graduate students.
